

Gift a Debt Free Life Instead of a Rose in the Season of Love

54.8% Americans celebrated Valentine's Day, and they spent $1.98 billion for flowers in 2016. The figure is huge and also saddening. Have you ever thought that instead of spending such a huge amount on Roses, you can use the money to give a debt-free life to your loved one?

Statistics show that an average consumer spent $147 on Valentine's Day. A dozen roses usually costs around $42 and the cost may rise to $100 on Rose Day and Valentine's Day.

If you love somebody, then use $147 to pay some of her/his bills. At least, it would help to bring a positive change in his/her life. He or she would appreciate this token of love more than a rose.
